

2020 Vision:

Key States Overview

When making your 2020 general election plan, it will be important to consider the 'lay of the land' There are states that our political team has determined are essential to win in 2020. The criteria is not just if they are deemed a swing state, but rather are states in which we can penetrate at the local level, as well as the federal level. Each of these states has key House and Senate races, as well as having significant impact on the 2020 presidential election. If you live in a swing state, consider working on these races. And, if you don't, consider what you can do from your state. Peer-to-peer texting and phone banking will be available into all of these states from anywhere in the country. Below, please find a list of all the states (column A - these are the focus for Indivisible in 2020) and key races throughout the county (columns B, C, and D).
